Dear Elizabethtown College Students:

The 2020-21 academic year was perhaps one of the most remarkable years in the history of Elizabethtown College. While it was certainly challenging, it was also a year that showed us that we can overcome any challenge, as long as we do it together. I thank you all for doing your part to keep our college, an academic community of strong, intellectual, and dedicated students, healthy and safe.

This year, despite the worldwide pandemic, we improved our facilities, created new academic programs, and held campus events and productions both in-person and virtually to still be able to provide a sense of belonging. Our faculty continued to teach, collaborating with our Information & Technology Services team to ensure you were able to receive the robust education you've come to know at Etown. We focused, more than ever, on preparing our students to live successful lives and helping them gain the necessary skills to excel in an ever-evolving workforce.

To the Class of 2021, I can share with full confidence that you have learned valuable skills and lessons that you will continue to use for the rest of your lives. I cannot wait to see what you do with the opportunities you have been given. I am certain that no matter where your path takes you, that you will find a way to make an impact on others and continue on a path of service as our mission guides us to do so.

I want to congratulate you on your achievements, for not only completing this academic year but also the incredible things that you have accomplished during your time at Elizabethtown College. We are so proud of you. Our time together may be coming to an end, but I know that a new chapter for you has just begun.

Most importantly, I want to thank all of you. I have witnessed a group of people, unified in purpose, each one striving to make our campus a better place. The spirit of our college has continued to grow, for as we send off the class of 2021, we have many more to welcome into this vibrant community. I believe you will take the foundation of knowledge you have built at Etown to help shape a world that is just, kind, and prosperous.

To all students, I ask that you continue to be stewards of the College, our campus, and the world. And, I ask that you keep Elizabethtown College in your heart and in your mind as you continue on your journey.

Blue Jays, Always.

Sincerely,

Cecilia M. McCormick, J.D.

THE HIGH LIBRARY

To Our Readers,

This yearbook was a labor of love from a dedicated and thoughtful staff. Each page contains memories and stories that represent our school, our students, and our community from a challenging and rewarding year at Elizabethtown College. The stories and images are a testament to the quality of education the College provides and a glimpse into the impact the lives of this young class have already made on the world.

A special thank you to the student staff members who shared their talents, insight, and connections with this book.

We would also like to thank the other staff members and the community for your support and generosity.

Finally, a heartfelt thank you to our volunteer editor Elizabeth Zonarich who has worked tirelessly to develop this unique and important project. We are beyond proud of the final product and so excited about what the future holds for Etown. We hope that you enjoy looking through this book as much as we enjoyed creating it!

Thank you,

The Conestogan Yearbook

A YEAR IN REVIEW

Flock to the Polls

Elizabethtown College encouraged all students, faculty, and staff to "flock to the polls" and vote in the 2020 presidential election. Through social media posts, website resources, and on-campus activity, Etown highlighted the importance of making every vote count.

Black Lives Matter

Elizabethtown College students participated in a peaceful Black Lives Matter protest in the local Elizabethtown community in support and solidarity of the nationwide and worldwide movement. We are proud to see our Blue Jays advocating for social justice!

Covid-19

Vaccinations

During the pandemic, Etown College enforced standards and precautions to ensure the safety and well-being of our college community. As the coronavirus vaccine rolled out and became available, Etown College strongly encouraged all members of our community who are able to get vaccinated!

Earth Day

Groups on Etown's campus celebrated Earth Day by sponsoring events such as selling Green Notebooks made entirely out of recycled and donated materials, selling succulents in the BSC, and hosting a Honey Bee Info and Recipe event in the Bowers Center Demo Kitchen.

Public Relations

Elizabethtown College has gone through dozens of changes since its establishment, and some were the result of COVID-19 social distancing. Furthermore quarantining provided students with the chance to spice up their normal hairstyle. Nonetheless, no matter what changes the school or students make, they will always emit the Blue Jays spirit.

Creative while Quarantined

Coping with Creativity

In May of 2020, the Elizabethtown College English Department asked students and faculty to submit their “creative reactions” to the then-recent coronavirus pandemic as part of a “Creative While Quarantined” contest. The winning pieces, excerpts of which are contained in this book, showcased creativity and imagination in response to the pandemic using graphic design, photography, poetry, short fiction, nonfiction, and flash prose. Please scan the QR code below to read the full pieces:

“Sense of Solitude” by Cristina
Clockion
Winner of the poetry category

Glancing at Instagram, my son, mature beyond his age, proclaims, “Do people host parties now? That’s stupid!

And who drinks Corona anymore??”

An interesting brand question to occupy the mind
of a marketer somewhere, in quarantine.

We overindulge on TikTok videos of isolated Italians,
riding bicycles in tiny apartments,
hiding from restless bambini,
hand-rolling pasta to perfection,
singing opera in their balconies, in a harmonic tune of “We’re alone together.”

“Change” by Mary Kirby Winner of the short fiction category

I rise from my bed a thing I detest now, I used to dream of never raising, and now I can’t wait to leave that coffin. Throwing on what I wore yesterday, I don’t bother to even look at myself. With nobody to impress, I skip breakfast, pull my hair up, and walk to the front door to slip on shoes. My mom insisted I go for a walk today; fresh air clears the mind; it’s her only solution to this never-ending hellscape. That and a boyfriend, but I don’t want a boyfriend, not that she would understand. I lock the door behind me and head down the metal steps already tired as I reach the blinding daylight.

Lot's of Pine, Pretty Barren: ★ ★ ★ ★ by Annelo Dell
Winner of the nonfiction category

Quarantine Stays invites you to review your recent visit to one of their many locations; this one specifically in southern New Jersey.

Feedback Report Type: Room booking

Length of Stay: (March 14, 2020 - ??) 89 days and counting? Who knows at this point?

Purpose of Stay: Isolated family trip, not planned

How would you rate the following?

Amenities: ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

There is an abundance of plant life, a home gym and library, air conditioning, free parking, and a piano. All the amenities come free, and I have regularly used the library and craft supplies. I do wish the pool was open; however, I have seen the legendary giant toad who resides there. It's nice to have open access to the wildlife of the Pine Barrens: birds, deer, squirrels, and the occasional roadkill. The WiFi is strong enough to hold multiple people on it, and I'm able to video conference for long periods throughout the day. The fellow guests are friendly enough and noise control isn't much of a problem.

Differing Perspectives by Elizabeth Gipe

I see a woman approaching the door, and my stomach churns when I see her without a mask. I already dread the confrontation waiting to happen, but I have no choice in the matter.

"Excuse me, ma'am," I call out to her, trying to make my voice sound polite.

My attempt doesn't work, since she scoffs at me in annoyance.

"Ugh, what?"

I swallow, feeling my mouth running dry as I brace myself in advance.

"All customers must wear a mask inside the store," I say apologetically.

"That's ridiculous," she scoffs again, indignant. "You can't make me."

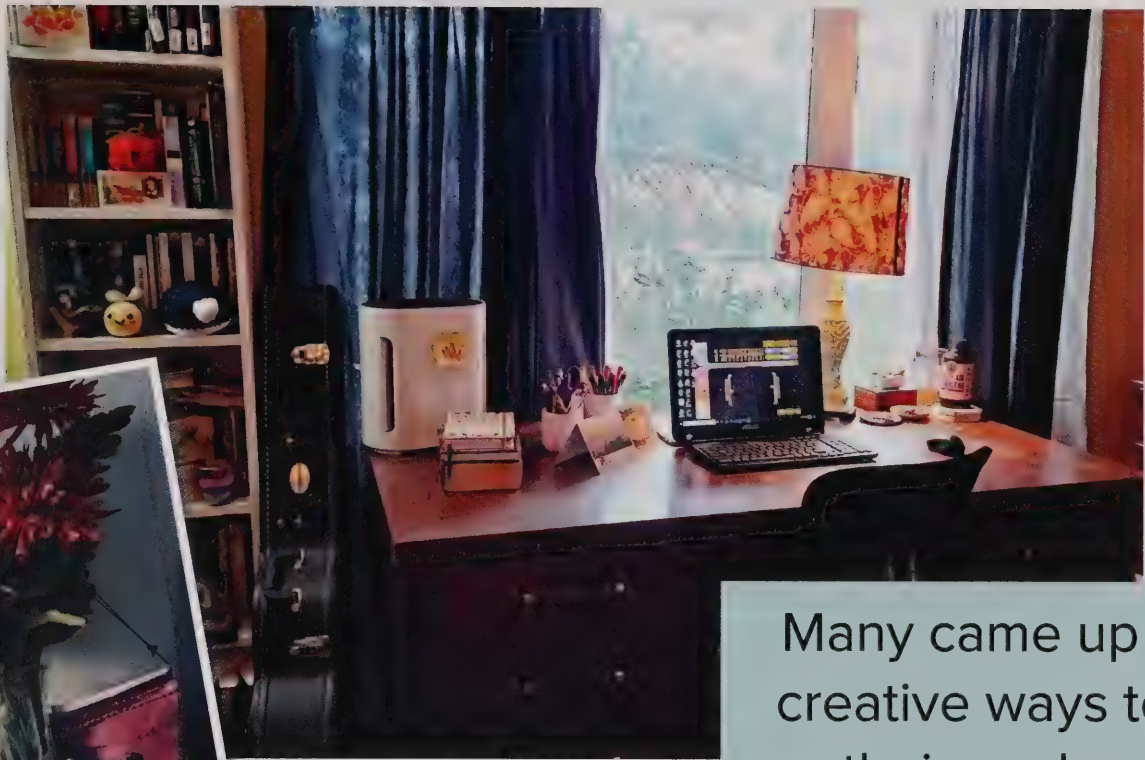

My reflex is to smile to placate her, but the mask hides it. I hope it at least shows in my eyes, and that maybe it will reach her, but I've worked jobs like these long enough to know the odds of that are slim.

Work From Home

While it was challenging, students, faculty and staff were able to work from home.

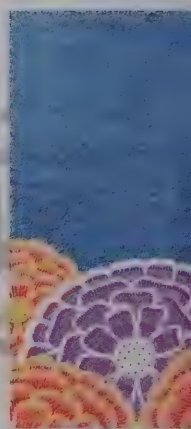

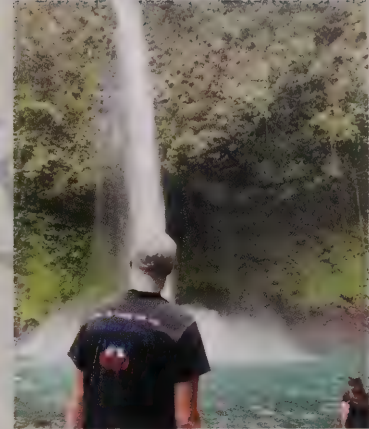

Many came up with creative ways to set up their workspaces!

STUDY ABROAD

During the pandemic

Stevie Wallen, 2022

San José, Costa Rica

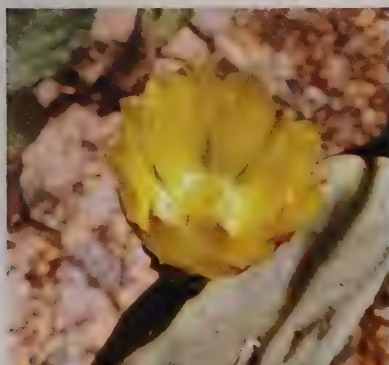

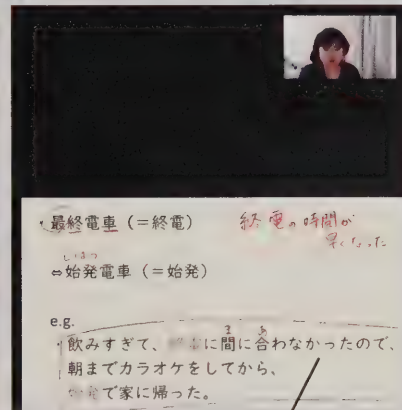

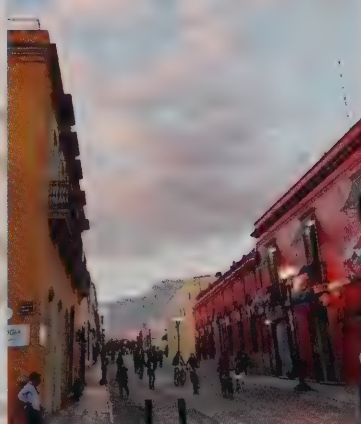

One thing I will certainly miss about Costa Rica is the incredible environment. Literally just by taking one step out of my host house, I could see views with breathtaking mountains and beautiful flowers. Not to mention, the beaches covering Costa Rica are amazing.

Brooke Bergman, 2022

Granada, Spain & Heredia, Costa Rica

The most fulfilling part of my study abroad experience was the ability to learn from native Spanish speakers during a pandemic and participate in exchanges with fellow students. While it was unfortunate that I could not study in person, I was still able to connect with the community and gain a foundation of knowledge for when I travel to Costa Rica in the summer. All of my courses, including my internship, have been conducted in Spanish, which has been incredibly helpful in the development of my language abilities. The aspect that I liked most of my academic experience was that my professor crafted the classes to help me grow.

Ariel Hampton, 2022

Osaka, Japan

I live in Maryland and was doing remote learning at home. I took classes through both Etown and Kansai Gaidai University. The Etown classes were what I liked to call my "day classes" and my Kansai classes were my "night classes" because while it was morning in Japan it was night for me in Maryland. I learned that Japan does not have daylight savings! This was a shock to me and other international students who happened to be in countries that have daylight savings. I think the most fulfilling part of my study abroad experience was that, despite being remote, Kansai Gaidai University still held fun events online for international students to participate in.

Student Impact During the Pandemic

The COVID-19 pandemic shaped the 2021 school year in many ways, but our campus community also helped to shape the pandemic in many ways. From pandemic related service projects, to simply following the guidelines, we worked together as a community to get through the worst days of the COVID-19 pandemic together.

Top Left: Emily Ward '23 printed 3D face-masks for healthcare workers when supplies were short at the beginning of the pandemic.

The background features a light blue gradient. Several thin, dark blue lines are drawn across the page, creating a geometric pattern. One line runs diagonally from the top left towards the bottom right. Another line runs diagonally from the top right towards the bottom left. A third line is horizontal, intersecting the other two. A fourth line is vertical, intersecting the horizontal line and the two diagonal lines. The word "STUDENT" is positioned in the center-right area of the page.

Clubs

Best Buddies

Best Buddies is a global organization whose mission revolves around inclusion - there are chapters all around the world! Our club's mission aims at establishing a global volunteer movement that creates opportunities for one-to-one friendships, integrated employment, and leadership development for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD). Through friendship and leadership, Best Buddies seeks to empower its members! Everybody needs a friend, but not everybody has one. It can be very hard for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities to make connections on their own. Therefore, Best Buddies matches them with a peer volunteer to form a "buddy pair". New friends open up a whole new world of opportunities! Buddy pairs hang out one-on-one and attend chapter events too. Our club hosts monthly group events, we go bowling, cook together, play outdoor games, meet for movie nights, have dance parties, gather at a Thanksgiving feast...the list goes on and on! This year, we've adapted to zoom and play Just Dance, Family Feud, Pictionary, and go on scavenger hunts. Whatever we are doing, we join with members of the community and always have a blast!

"I'm a Junior Mathematical Business Major. I transferred to Elizabethtown College after spending a semester at Robert Morris University and deciding it wasn't for me. I graduated from Elizabethtown High School and only live five minutes away from campus which makes it really easy being a commuter. Before the pandemic I didn't feel as though being a commuter held me back from being able to make friends and spend a lot of my time on campus. Since COVID hit my "college experience" has been drastically changed. Hopefully next year it will be a little different and I can fully enjoy my last year at college."

Austin Jones
By: Josh McLaughlin

"I am a first generation college student. I am the youngest of 4 and have 7 nephews and 4 nieces. I have seen some of my nieces and nephews struggle with emotional abuse, physical abuse, and much worse. This is important to me, and is ultimately why I decided to major in Early Childhood Education. I have such a great opportunity to empower so many students, while also setting an example for my nieces and nephews. Elizabethtown College's Education Department has made me develop professionally, and I can't thank my professors enough. They truly played a part in changing my family's trajectory." -Austin Jones

"It is the first time in my life I've ever felt like I'm old. I've always felt a little bit more mature than my other friends or I've gravitated toward younger people who are more mature or don't act like kids. But yet I still am a kid at heart. There're different ways to be mature about things but I've always wanted to be older and not be a kid. But now that I'm old, all I want is to be a kid again. All I want is to just play Sonic Adventure and not worry about the world and have to work. It feels strange. But if I went to college when I was eighteen, I would not be any bit of good of a student as I am now."

Miriam Englehart

By: Ally Bonicker

"I'm a military kid, so in my 18 years of life, I've moved around roughly every three years, living in seven states as well as in the U.K. My life has been full of transition, and while I have loved the experiences I've had, it's hard for me to pinpoint one place to call 'home.' By the time I graduate from Elizabethtown's Occupational Therapy program, I will have lived here at the College longer than I've lived anywhere else. I know I will be able to put down roots here, forming lifelong friendships that don't have to be uprooted right after they begin. My experience here has already been so welcoming and positive, and I am excited to soon call E-town my home."

Josh Mengel

By: Emma Gaughan

"I joined the beginning of freshman year. I originally saw Phalanx perform when I went to an open house when I was still a senior in high school and came to visit E-town. I was intrigued because I've been in music in music all through high school, middle school, I've been singing since elementary school. I absolutely love it. I can't not picture myself not being in Phalanx just because I've been in it since I've been at school. It's a great experience. It's a great way for freshmen to make a strong connection with upperclassmen. When I was a freshman one of the current seniors at that time, his name was Ryan, really took me under his wing. He was always asking me questions about how school's going, how things are going when I first got here. And really helped make me feel comfortable. It was nice to have that connection with not only freshman, which is pretty much who freshman interact with their first year, it was nice to interact with some of the upperclassmen as well."

Rachel Little
By: Nicole McCauley

"I knew I wanted to go to a small school the second I started looking at colleges. It was important to me that I was more than a number. Etown ended up exceeding my expectations. The communications department has been the most supportive group of people I've worked with on campus. I'm so lucky to be able to call most students in the program good friends of mine. The faculty has also really contributed in making me feel incredibly valued at this institution. Knowing that I have a full staff of people on my side, committed to making sure my academic experience is the best it can be is really reassuring. If there's one thing the com department does well, it's creating a safe environment for its students to thrive outside the bounds of the classroom."

Haleigh Palutis
By: Patrick Osborn

"I choose Etown because of their emphasis on education and the flexibility of accommodating their student's needs. As an OT major an important consideration when choosing a college was one that would let me study abroad. Etown would allow me to pursue my professional and personal goals through the flexible OT course schedule allowing me time to study abroad. Since my time at Etown, I have felt encouraged to continue learning and challenging myself academically. Through the help of my amazing professors, I feel inspired to further my education as well as follow my personal goals.."

Garret Wilson

"I came to Etown for their business department, more specifically for their excellent accounting program. I really called levitated towards accounting, I took a couple accounting classes in high school and enjoyed it and I really want to get out and help small businesses either start-up or become profitable over time and I feel like becoming an accounting major and working as an accountant I can really help businesses. My family actually owns two breweries back in Hanover and one of them just opened up a couple weeks ago and really seeing how that works in the business and how I'm actually being able to apply my skills to an actual business has really inspired me to keep working."

"I was born in New York, but I lived all over the country. I've lived in New York, New Jersey, Tennessee, Missouri, Nevada, Nebraska, California, and I count Pennsylvania cause I live here most of the year. My dad is an environmental health and safety manager. He basically comes up with training programs with OSHA and when he fixes up the training programs he gets bored, so then he decides to move which has made for a really interesting childhood. My older siblings have lived in like 13 states which is kind of crazy. I fly around a lot. I keep a wall of plane tickets in my room and then I have a box full of plane tickets that I think is pretty funny to look at. Going to California is usually 2 to 3 flights – and I've made that a few times. And then Nebraska also a few times, usually like 2 flights to get there from California."

Joanna Shultz

By: Jessica Piergalli

"Ever since I was younger, I've always wondered about my birth mother and my birth. A lot of kids in middle school would know about the exact hour and minute they were born and while I don't so much as mind that fact, it feels different for me. I was born in China and adopted and raised in America. I have had absolutely no connection to my heritage other than the face that I was born with and the fact that every few summers I would attend a Chinese cultural camp with dozens of other Chinese-adoptees. I've always wondered why I felt like I didn't fit in, if it was because I was Asian and sometimes you can't always force yourself to understand someone else's situation or perspective. And maybe it's not so much that I wished my parents had made more of an effort to include my heritage in my upbringing, but maybe, just maybe, that I could see other people try to understand where I was coming from as well. Going to a majority white high school made me feel like I couldn't fit into a specific identity of being "Asian" or "just American" but always somewhere in between. It wasn't until coming to college and finding out that there's a whole world of people who love you for yourself and who you are. It doesn't matter what labels are put on you because sometimes you don't fit any of them and that you can have an intersection of identities."

L-R: Alpha Hall, Elizabethtown College Sign, Myer Residence Hall & Cafeteria

Elizabethtown College was chartered in 1899 by members of the Church of the Brethren. The first classes were held in 1900 in the Heisey building in downtown Elizabethtown. Alpha Hall, the first building on E-town's campus was built in 1901 which housed students and served as an academic building. Pictured above, Myer was the first of the still functioning residence halls that opened on campus in 1957. Myer also served as a cafeteria.
